

EAST TRACK June 5,6-roll call

Posted by norman#99 - 24 May 2010 18:37

I have a long way to go but I plan to be there, I can't wait it's been for ever it seems.

1 Norman

2 Rich

3 Austin

4 Steve

Hey Jim missed you out there but we understand that you couldn't get up that early. I don't know about every body but old man norm took the pole but blew the start and the kid got the lead. I past the kid for first and set another track record then the kid forced me to make a mistake on the last corner of the last lap and he took the win. All and all had a blast w austin and norm. Great to have stormin norman back in the seat with all that time off norman got the pole, awesome job norm!

SoundS like a blast, sorry I missed it, siting on a beach in Maui, decisions decisions... Well congrats on the podium and Austin for first (again) don't let Norman fool you his 'time off' is a full time gig driving/instructing in Dubai! Well that and he's a hot shoe anyway... Well see you guys next time I'll be back with new shocks and an LSD... Hopefully I can stay on the same lap!...

Well I am sad I missed it.

However I did get some good family time in so that was worth it.

I should be back by August. I have few things to chase down on the car plan to have it ready for final shakedown in August before Nationals.

Rich you are fast and a great driver. So you have a strong chance to win Nationals. Right now we are 21 drivers signed-up so winner will get $2000 in cash.

Nationals in 2011 and 2012 will be in Ohio. Nice place, but not realistic to attend for most of us. I have not heard about where it will be in 2013. So there is chance we may not have a national championship race with in a 1 day tow range for many years after this.

Old man Norm here to say thanks for the racing, I was missing the competition and got my fill for a short while. Yep, totally spaced out on the start, must be the age thing. Very surprised that I had pole, not surprised Richy has the new track record and that "The Kid" got another win.

Looked like good racing with Dave and Steve, Kent and Darrin were the lone rangers from what I saw, but lots of good side ways driving by all!

Hope to have it together for the west track next month.

Oh, I need an unbent cooky cutter if anybody knows of one.
