

Buttonwillow - October - Going?

Posted by JDeLira - 12 Oct 2017 16:26

---

Sorry I wasn't able to race with you guys at Thunderhill, but I'm signed up for Buttonwillow. Who else is going? -Jerry

---

---

Re: Buttonwillow - October - Going?

Posted by reflexr - 12 Oct 2017 17:58

---

We'll be there, 944 spec and TT. Doing a test n tune day Sunday the 15th with SpeedVentures.

---

---

Re: Buttonwillow - October - Going?

Posted by dancing944 - 17 Oct 2017 13:50

---

I'll be there.

I know several of you are worn out from Nationals. But I think you're just getting warmed up! Join us at the end of October. It's sure to be fun!

Everett

---

Re: Buttonwillow - October - Going?

Posted by Atteberry - 17 Oct 2017 19:51

---

I am signed up for the event. At this point not 100% will have a competitive car

---

---

Re: Buttonwillow - October - Going?

Posted by reflexr - 17 Oct 2017 20:46

---

It's okay, we toasted 3rd at our test day, so running a bone stock trans, and stock exhaust since we broke that too. And at Only 134hp, I think we may be racing for last!

---

=====

Re: Buttonwillow - October - Going?

Posted by ChuckS - 18 Oct 2017 10:22

---

Debby and I are signed up. The car is a mess! At Thunderhill, in addition to breaking a cross member and severely bending a wheel, we found out that the low power (131hp) was due to a bent valve (50% leak down). I think from a broken valve spring. Will know for sure today. Broke the exhaust manifold as well. Also, the broken transmission turns out to be a broken ring and pinion. Yet again! So, will probably only have the open diff trans in. Also, the cutting out during the championship run looks like the fuel pump. Will have to replace that as well.

So ..... we will be running wounded. Should be fun!!!

---