I believe mine is Lindsey Racing and works well. The only complaints I've heard about some is alignment issues for the belt.

I have one too, very light! There is someone on here that made their own with good success. I believe they cut down the existing bracket somehow. The price is the only drawback, very $$$.

I use the factory a/c delete bracket and have for 10 years. Works like a charm.

I've had both the factory and the aluminum aftermarket type, both work perfectly fine and lower the cg of the car. The aftermarket does look cooler though.
