944-SPEC - 944SPEC - low cost wheel to wheel racing

Generated: 1 July, 2025, 13:31

Hanksville cage / Factory dash Posted by Joel8005 - 22 Dec 2010 15:23
I am looking at Hanksville cages for my 968 build, could any of you guys who have his cage post a picture of how the cage intersects with the factory dash. After talking with Hank today I know the cage is built so it would require cutting a opening or completely removing the end of the factory dash as to fit around the a-pillar tube. There are no real pic's of a cage install on his site with a factory dash install.
Thanks,
Re: Hanksville cage / Factory dash Posted by RacerX - 22 Dec 2010 16:14
This is not a Hanksville cage or a 968 but close. It is a 944 and similar cage construction. If your looking for gauges try here www.glowshiftdirect.com/ and here is a coupon code for an additional 10% off. 944Build2010
Hope this helps.
Re: Hanksville cage / Factory dash Posted by Joel8005 - 22 Dec 2010 16:36
Thanks for the quick post but as my thread stated looking for a Hanksville with factory dash install. I will keep the gauges in mind though.
Thx,
Re: Hanksville cage / Factory dash Posted by spec28 - 22 Dec 2010 23:22

Just curious..why keep the dash and do all that work? You have the perfect bar for a cage mounted aluminum guage panel.

944-SPEC - 944SPEC - low cost wheel to wheel racing

Generated: 1 July, 2025, 13:31

Re: Hanksville cage / Factory Posted by Joel8005 - 27 Dec 2010 14:19	dash dash
Posted by Joel8005 - 27 Dec 2010 14:19

•

Ok, next question.....have any of you had trouble installing the instrument cluster in the late model cars with the dash bar?
